So I was prepared to cut Grace Tame some slack given what she's had to deal with but after she attended the pro Palestinian rally that saw her go feral I like many others said ok that's enough now. The ABC however have brought Grace into their fold and made her part of a new programme called 'Autistic AF'. A program where she discusses women with autism and other issues facing women. First up, I wonder if they can define what a woman is and secondly the ABC are a woke lefty rabble that is now being criticised by one of their own in Charlie Pickering. The idea the ABC is supported by tax payer money is a joke especially given most people don't watch it or are in serious opposition to its content. Time for the ABC to lose its funding and try to survive in the big wide world on its own. Good luck!

Now I'm all for people being paid what they're worth and being given what they need to survive but are we really handing out pay rises again? The minimum wage in Australia for the first time is now above $1,000 a week and two things come out of this rise. The first is how do businesses afford it and secondly what does the RBA do with inflation now? Stick up rates again? When will government bodies understand that inflation won't go away until they stop spending money! But it's not only minimum wage earners getting a pay rises, Albo stands to get a $57,000 a year pay rise. We know that Albo will say he doesn't set the pays etc but he could say no. You know what else he could do? He could stop MP's wearing designer clothes into the parliament. In recent days MP's from both sides of the divide have been seen in labelled designer gear...a big middle finger to those doing it toughest.

Luba Grigorovitch, the new Labor wunderkind, ain't so wonderful after all. Why? Because she's handed out no less than 33 character references for people she says she took at face value. I bet the local machete wielding asshole can be nice on the surface so can he get one Luba? But have no fear Luba, you work for one of if not the most corrupt governments ever in office in this country so just say you've learnt your lesson and move on. Oh and how's Big John?

Australia's own Joe Bogan, aka Karl Stefanovic is apparently upsetting a few people at Channel 9 with some of the content he's including in his highly successful podcast. Karl who has never really put his right wing views out there at 9 is now a full blown righty and some don't like it. I don't mind it, but here's hoping he's legit, but it remains to be seen.

STOLEN GENERATION MEMORIAL

We know that Lord Airness Nick Reece is a Labor Party stooge and that he's onboard with the whole woke inner city council vibe, but he may be in a bit trouble with his latest project.

Reece as part of the whole reconciliation journey thing has commissioned a Stolen generations memorial in the Melbourne CBD. The council like the state and federal governments would much rather stand around a memorial than actually do anything of real value for the indigenous communities around Australia, but I digress. Reece needs some more dollar bucks from the state government to finish the project.

The multi million dollar project is short some $750,000 and Reece has gone knocking on the door of the Treasury to get it. This will be interesting to say the least. Reece is being pushed to get the memorial done asap because some the elders are getting on in age and they want to see it before they die, so the pressure is on Reece and now Allan.

The Allan government is all about multiculturalism and making a big song and dance about indigenous people but do very little to make a real difference, so a memorial is right up her alley. The question though is will she give Reece the money he needs?

To be fair she's sort of stuffed if she does or doesn't. The state is broke and can't afford it but if she doesn't hand over the dollars she is going to get hammered by all those inner city lefties. Lefty extremists who'd rather pour red paint on the Captain Cook cottage than go without a new place to make themselves feel better in.

It will be interesting to see what happens but to both of them, why not donate the money to helping indigenous kids get an education? Find career paths, to give them a new sense of hope instead of more work garbage that does nothing very much for the plight of indigenous people.

The stolen generation is indeed a shameful period in our history but while we absolutely must acknowledge the last we need to take steps to make sure nothing like that ever happens again. Education, housing, health care, support programs... the list is endless but addressing just one of those issues is better than a memorial that does nothing to address the issues being faced today by indigenous communities.

I bet Allan gives him the money.

DO WE REALLY NEED THE ABC NOW?

Remember when the ABC was the place where you could watch quality TV. The arts were actually a thing taken seriously. Literature was debated and enjoyed. Science was a topic of intense interest. Sport while important was a second tier topic unless it was test match special. You got things from the ABC you didn't get from commercial TV. You got educated news and current affairs and discussions from people who knew about the world around them.

The ABC used to sit in the middle of the political landscape. It did verge left but it tried to keep its bias aside and delivered news content and programming that wasn't there to divide rather it was there to have open and free discussions about issue that mattered. Today not so much.

I barely watch the ABC now. I listen to the radio sometimes in the mornings but the ABC are sort of akin to what's happened to the Greens. The greens used to be all about the environment. The Franklin Dam, the Rainforests, the idea of global warming, but are now a far left organisation that's not that big into the environment rather they want to be fighting for causes totally irrelevant to their original purpose.

The ABC once the voice of the truth and the place you went for educational programming, BBC TV series and the arts is now this government mouth piece that is totally out of touch with modern society. That's not to say the ABC has to be up with the cool kids, it doesn't but that's the way it's positioned itself nowadays. Edgy programming that falls flat, current affairs programming that is so biased you wonder why they bother ever interviewing anyone from the right and this in vain attempt to be the Australian arbiters of the truth.

The ABC, like Pauline Hanson says should become a subscription service. No free to air licence any more, no government protections, sell it off to the highest bidder and make it pay for its supper.

The latest issue for the ABC is the employment of Grace Tame and shows again why they're so deluded. A woke lefty organisation that can't see common sense through all the different coloured flags they fly. It's time to cut the ABC loose and to let them fend for themselves and I for one would find it hilarious to watch a Murdoch, a Packer or a Stokes walk through the front door. Will it happen? Not with this government in charge but god help the ABC is Pauline wins it all.

AUSTRALIAN POPULATION

Ok so we have a falling birth rate but an increasing population? So what are we doing about that? At the moment it appears nothing but we do actually need to work out what's going on or we run the risk of losing who we are as a nation and as people.

Immigrants have made up so much of what Australia is but now it is time to close the front door to unskilled migrants and say you and your families stay where you are because there's no cash here! We need to have more housing opportunities for the people that are actually citizens and are invested in the future of the country rather than those who are instantly looking for handouts.

Why is it that anyone that suggests we cut migration is instantly labelled a racist? The people marching down the streets, posting to social media or pushing for violence or aggression towards migrants absolutely need to be called out for being racist, but what about the ramifications of population growth? Where does any kind of common sense come into any of this?

We need skilled Labour and then we need to make sure we have the national infrastructure to house, feed and support people in their lives. We seem utterly incapable of coming at population growth and migration by any kind of sensible conversation. France has shut the door on all migration for three years. We're not suggesting that, what we are saying is that we need to still have migrants arrive here, but they need to have skills we need and that we need to address housing and all the other issues that come with population growth. It's not rocket science!

The problem with immigration and population growth is that immigrants mean votes. That's what it comes down to and until that simple fact changes we will continue to see our population grow but our birth rate decline.

SOUL

The truth will set you free, but it can be lonely

You know what the hardest part of being upfront with people is? Being cast aside. The truth will indeed set you free, but the reality is people don't really like hearing the truth. I suppose it takes courage to say what you really think, but it could also be labelled stupidity given when you do say something of truth people cut you off.

Now I actually couldn't care less what anyone thinks about me nowadays, yes I'd like to have more approval I suppose but peoples opinions of me won't keep me awake at night. The line that NFL legend Dion Sanders gave to a media conference a number of years ago in which he said; "...what part of you thinks I would care what you think about me...", is a line I've always kept with me, but if you're going to be that person then you best be ok with being alone.

I can also smell bullshit from 1,000 miles away. A stressed business, a person who is lying not only to themselves but to the people around them, a person that's all nicey nicey to you but then makes absolutely no effort to maintain communication, the person that promises the world and comes through with zero...I've heard it all and met them all. Now I don't set out to tell these people what I think of them there and then, that's just rude, but I keep a mental record and am proven right 99% of the time down the track. Do they know I'm keeping track? Maybe maybe not, but I'm not often wrong.

It's not my intention to cause offence to anyone, but I think I spent so much of my life trying to appease people and not being who I was meant to be that my brutal grip on reality is now not for everyone. It's ok not to like me, it's ok to avoid me, but at some point the truth will come home to roost for most people.

For me, the truth has set me free. I don't have to put up with people I have no time for, I don't pander to the deliberately selfish, I can't be bothered with those that lie to themselves or those around them and I'm just not going to work with people I have no respect for. My choices, my life but if you're going to be the same then be ready for a small circle of those that understand you and be content with your own company.
