EDITORIAL

Well good morning and welcome to the Hoodies Daily for Thursday and wow! What a night was had by those narcissistic talentless wankers in Canberra last night! How amazing did they all look, dressed up in the tax payer funded outfits and suits! Yes folks according to SBS news while the number one issue that concerns people is cost of living our elected representatives thought it was still ok to host their annual Midwinter ball and pose for photos! This was while some people shop for groceries at Food Bank, don't have jobs, live in their cars and struggle to feed their kids! Not only did we see our politicians cozy up to one another and have a laugh at our expense they've collectively fucked the housing market for first home buyers who are now staring down the barrel at negative equity! So we can only hope Albo and his fellow MP's had a great night and all made it home safely via their tax payer funded car services! Grubs!

Back in the real world how free is freedom of speech? I mean look it's great that Karl Stefanovic is FREE of channel nine and now ARN but to relax Karl headed off to James Packers Yacht with Eddie McGuire to make himself feel better. Now Packer owns the yacht but Karl won't be going poor off the back of his departure from nine or ARN, in fact according to former gutter newspaper editor and now You Tuber Piers Morgan, Karl will be much better off. See Piers let it slip in his interview with Karl that his show Piers Morgan uncensored has investment from? The Murdochs! So while everyone is running around hoping Karl will be ok just hosting his right wing podcast it appears that freedom of speech ain't so free after all.

Credit where credit is due, Paul Dowsley at Channel 7 absolutely stuck it to Jacinta Allan yesterday as he spotted her trying to get out of Parliament House without the media seeing her. Allan who is in no mood to talk about yet more corruption allegations was pretty much chased by Channel 7 and ended up forcing back inside the parliament building to escape the media. While Nick McKenzie keeps writing maybe Paul Dowsley can be his hatchet man after all? The as good to see Allan run!

Moir Deeming looks set to get booted from the Liberal Party and about bloody time. Moira who has no doubt been egged on by Credlin and Abbott has to go and we wish her well on her new career with Sky.

Did anyone see Mark Butlers cringe worthy performance on his instagram account yesterday. Have a look for yourself but does anyone else think the social media person is a Liberal voter and told Butler performing like an idiot would get him more followers than the ones the tax payer paid for? Grow up man!

And finally everyone's favourite environmental billionaire Twiggy Forrest has been told to pay more than $150 million in compensation to the traditional owners of the land he blew up for environmental reasons? Ahhh no, but he is desperately sorry for doing so.

FREE SPEECH?

I have been hustling for money since I was 10 years of age. From the age of 8 I had to catch the bus and a train to school and started wagging school when I was 12. I hated it and it hated me. Despite coming from a family of lawyers I ended up in foster care and was adopted by 15 which kind of sucked as well. Even though I was relatively smart I achieved pretty much zero at school but somehow made my way into the world of Opera singing and was ok at it and yet hated the wealth that it attracted. I have never had money, my family had it and drank it and I despise it. I have seen into the soul of money and it is cesspit of arrogance, deceit and false hope. Would I like to not be in debt? Yes. Would I like to give my wife the farm she deserves? Yes I would, but I won't sell my soul for it and neither will she... but some do and will continue to do so.

The whole idea of Hoodies Media is to raise awareness of the utter stupidity, hypocrisy, arrogance, piss taking garbage we have to live with in the world today. If you'd asked me a year ago which side of the political spectrum we sat I would've said centre right, now I'd say nowhere! Because we have to hold all sides to account via common sense, authenticity and accountability. The idea of Hoodies wasn't to be a billionaire it was and remains to make a difference, but how much is freedom of speech worth today?

As much as I've admired what Karl Stefanovic has done of late Karl isn't crying poor here, he'll be fine. In fact while he sits on James Packers yacht with Eddie McQuire and Brett Ratner you have to ask is getting boned by nine the best thing that's happened to Karl?

Karl is now the Aussie face of freedom of speech, in his words he's free to do what he wants and interview who he wants, but is he? According to gutter editor and now You Tuber Piers Morgan his show is partly funded by? The Murdoch family. While it's of course very clever of the Murdochs to diversify their media interests into the likes of You Tube it's good to remember how many wealthy media companies there are and who controls them.

As I sit beside my bed writing this on my phone it's good for you to know I don't have very much at all. My very tolerant wife and I aren't flashy, we don't go out much, our circle is small, we don't sit on the yachts of our friends, we lead a life of animals, school events, family dinners and holidays on Aussie soil. Two old cars in the driveway and a house in need of work our lives are nothing but honest and loving. We're pretty lucky but what we are not and what we will never be is fake for the sake of a headline or some eyeballs. We will never be told what to write, what to say, who to talk to or where we should be...because freedom of speech is just that, freedom. It is the opportunity to say what you think and mean what you say.

So to Karl, Eddie, Jimmy and Brett enjoy the yacht, enjoy what freedom of speech means to you because it means something very different to us.

THE RIGHT FIGHTS AMONGST ITSELF

There can be no doubt that the emergence of the right wingers populist media is what's raising concerns about the world around us. Yes we know the left cast anything populist off as misinformation or a conspiracy theory but a good portion of right wing populist media is factual and quite interesting to listen to. At the very least it offers us a different perspective on issues that have profound implications on all of us.

Some of the populist media though is a bit iffy when it comes to quality. While Rebel News hosted in Australia by Avi Yemeni is one of the better outlets Avi makes no secret of his right wing leanings. Another right wing podcast called 2 Worlds Collide hosted by an ex soldier Sam Bamford is a little bit lower on the quality scale than Rebel News but makes it points as well as possible. Both hosts are unquestionably right wing and have both been huge supporters of Pauline Hanson and her One Nation party but now Avi has gone after Sam, why? Because Sam, unlike Avi isn't protesting as much as him about recent Muslim marches through the streets of Melbourne for the Ashura procession.

Avi like many of us isn't a fan of allowing Muslims to do as they please on the streets of Melbourne and Sam? Well he's oddly a bit more tolerant of it all, which has Avi going after the former soldier and accusing him of being antisemitic. At time of writing this Sam hasn't hit back at what Avi has had to say but aren't they supposed to be on the same side?

Does the right not understand how this game works? If you're not a United front against the left they will absolutely tear you to pieces. The left are always, well often, United in their warped vision of the future and its media narrative. The right populists? Not so much. Avi needs to pick up the phone to Sam and say come on the show we need to sort this out or vice versa, but will they? Probably not.

So the battle of the populists goes on and while we need a united right we won't see Rebel News or 2 Worlds collide being at the forefront of the movement to unite it all.

MID WINTER WANK FEST

Late yesterday SBS News published a poll ranking the biggest issues facing families today. Top of the list of issues? Cost of living. More than 65% of respondents said that cost of living was their biggest concern today. Now off the back of those cost of living concerns we know that more people than ever are turning to Food banks for help. We know people are living in their cars. We know that housing is becoming ever more unaffordable and that first home buyers are facing issues over negative equity given the property market has tanked. People are losing jobs, small businesses are failing and what do our elected representatives do? Go ahead with their mid winter ball that was dressed up as a fundraiser.

Could we have a more delusional bunch of talentless overpaid narcissistic wankers thinking it wasn't a bad look to be wearing clothes pretty much paid for by the taxpayer in a cost of living crisis.

It is staggering that the very people who want to make a difference to the people in their electorates can simply ignore the issues people are facing, don the frock or the dinner suit and head off to a grand ball giving a big middle finger to the tax payer on the way through.

Well, I hope they had a great time, hope they all made it home safely and hope they took advantage of the tax payer funded government cars to get their asses home...what a joke!

SOUL

Let's not forget who we are

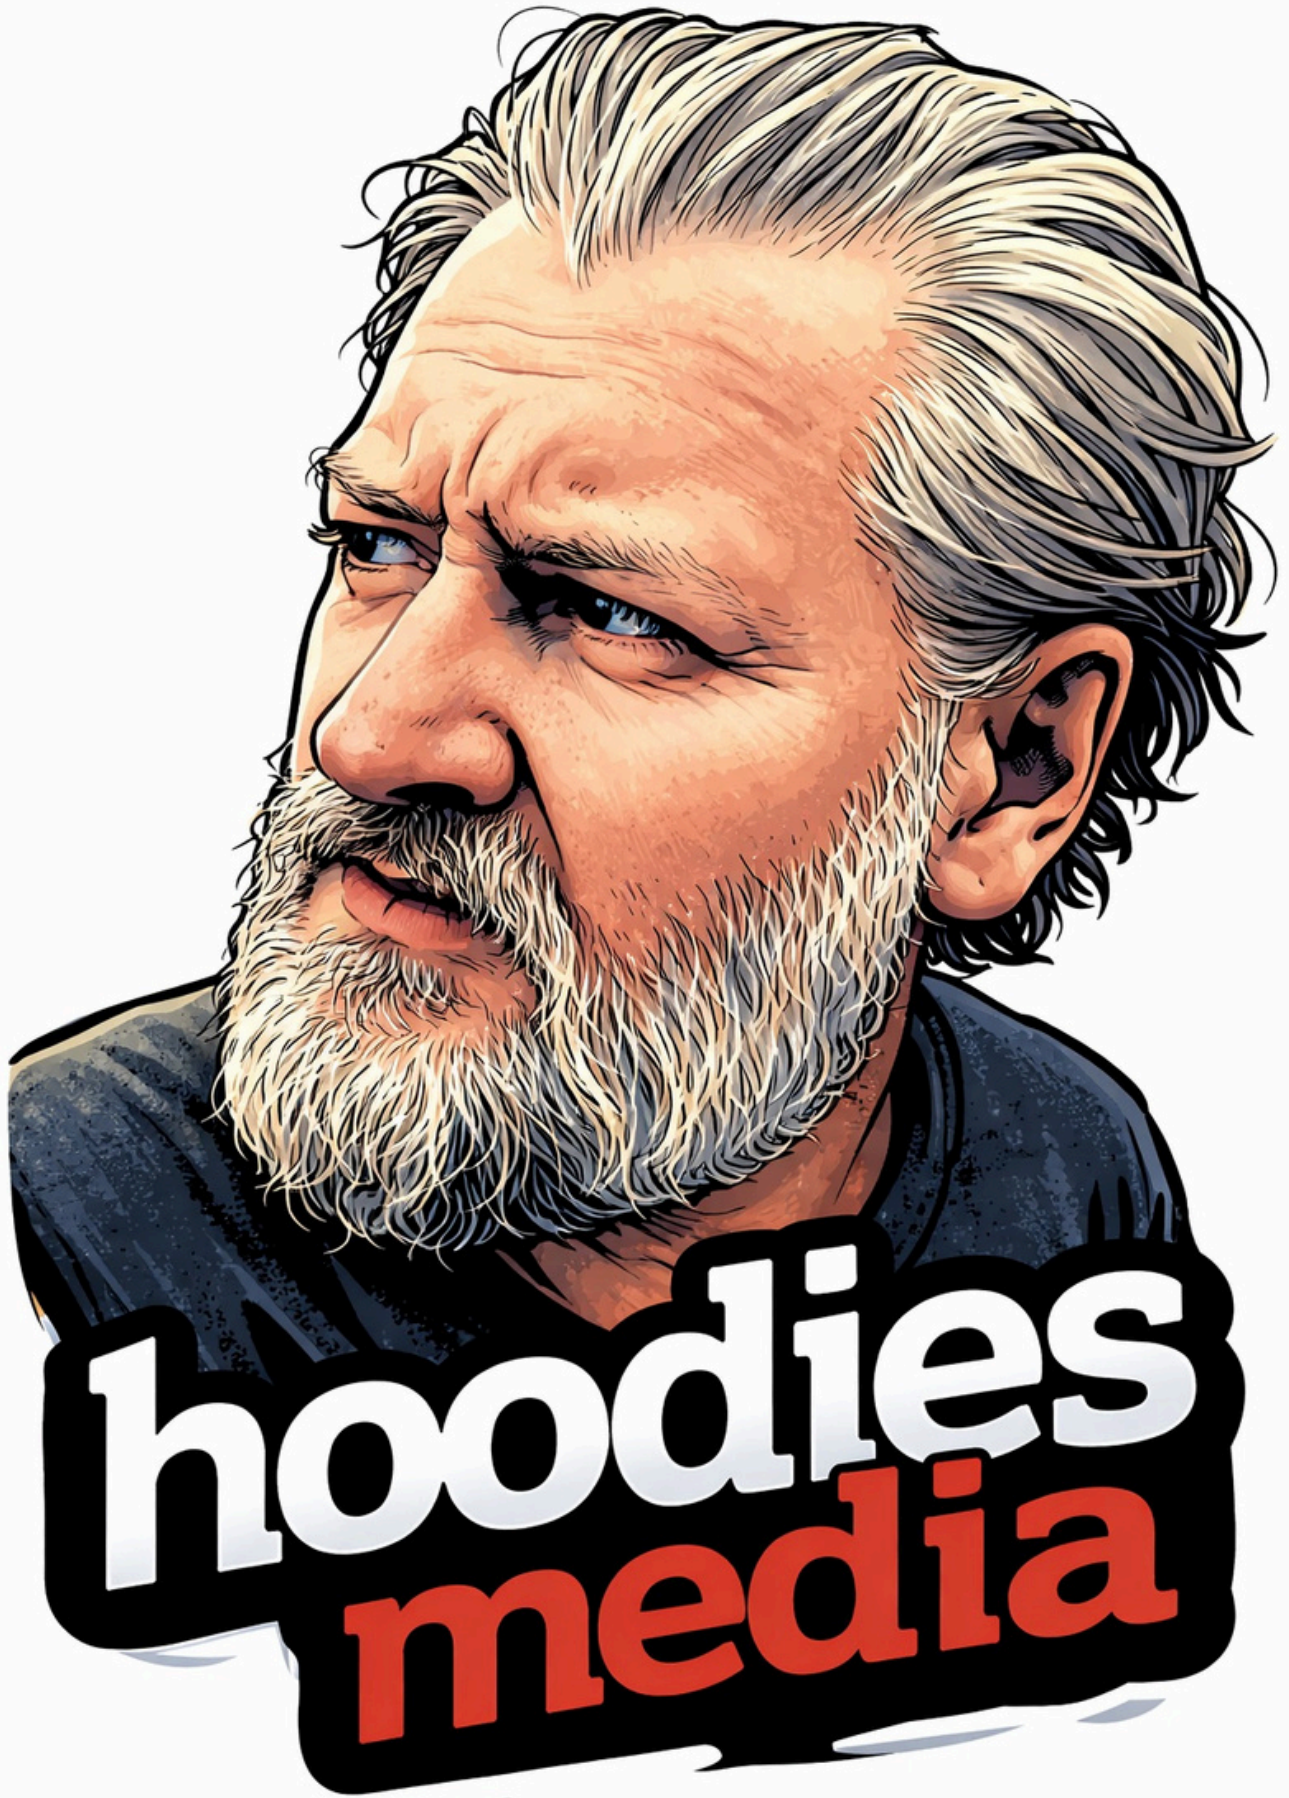

I was away for a few days last week with work and I came back to my normal routine and thought what the fuck?! I had had intermittent phone coverage where I was and hadn't listened to my regular podcasts or radio stations and when I did get back to listen to them I deleted most of them and made myself listen to Beethoven. Why? Because I'd partly become detached from my own soul.

We are so caught up in our devices now. We have information true or otherwise in the palm of our hands and we never let them go. Yes indeed some of us use our devices for inspiration and for learning but we also use them to dark. We use them to seek out the worst the internet has to offer and it takes us to places we do not need to go.

Before devices and mobile phones came along we were out with friends, watching Tele, talking, clubbing, dancing, drinking, playing outside, reading, making mix tapes and listening to music...today it's head down and we are caught up in scrolling through thousands and thousands of mind numbing videos that do more damage to us than any old time TV show could've.

We need our souls back. We need to remember who we are, that we need human interaction and that we need to re-engage with our souls. Go for a walk in the rain, jump in puddles, read Enid Blyton, watch an old movie, write a story about nothing, use a real pen to write a poem, play outside with our kids, go for a run, cook something not out of a packet for dinner and feel the wind rush past our faces as we ride a bike down a hill. Soul. Humanity, people we need to remember it and say life is for living with our heads up not pointed down at a screen.

Go live, go find your soul and live a life beyond the device in your hand.
